The Railways Crowded

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—The railroads to-day were literally swamped in the tremendous rush of people from all over the country. The extra trains were counted only in dozens at every passenger depot in Chicago. People swarmed in in floods and for a time after the arrival of every train the streets near the depots were jammed. Many trains arriving were much larger than usual and every seat in all of them was crowded. The number arriving in the early part of the day was nothing like this evening. The sale of tickets at reduced rates for the dedicatory exercises did not begin until to-day and it was only the people at points quite close to the city that could avail themselves of them to reach the city in the early part of the day. Orders were pouring in on the operating departments of the roads for extra equipment, being far in excess of anticipation or of the preparations made to accommodate the people. When it was announced the public would not be admitted to the grounds at any time during the dedicatory period those from a distance threatened not to go to Chicago at all and the agents of many of the roads concluded it would be unnecessary to make any preparations. When it was announced later that the public would be admitted to the grounds Saturday they changed and came any way. The roads are rushed as they never were before since the invention of the locomotive.

Liquor Selling at the Fair

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—The temperance question came up for consideration by the National World's Fair commission to-day in the shape of bundles of petitions demanding the prohibition of the sale of liquor on the exposition grounds. Several prohibitionists were present and Commissioner King of Iowa made a motion that they be heard by the commission. Commissioner Hundley of Alabama declared that the commission had no right to prohibit the sale of liquor on the grounds and offered a resolution that as the commission only has the right to modify the rules made by the directory the commission should take no action on the prohibition question until the directory has acted. A long debate followed after which Mr. Sewell of New Jersey moved that the question be referred to the judiciary committee. The motion was lost by a vote of 43 nays and 37 yeas.

The commission upheld General Miles in his decision to confine the military parade Friday to Washington Park but not without a parting shot, however, from Governor Walker of Connecticut who urged the right of the national public to witness the parade in a downtown review.

Commissioner King's motion was then amended to grant the prohibition speakers an hour in which to address the commission in favor of a dry fair on condition that the liquor interest be given a similar hearing in the future. An adjournment was then taken until 8 o'clock, when the arguments for a dry fair began.

The Civic Parade.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—It is estimated to-day that in the great civic parade which will take place to-morrow at least one hundred thousand will be in line directed by Generals Stockton and Miles. The procession will include the distinguished guests, the police and their officers. The parade will be five hours passing a given point. Reviewing stands have been erected on Adams street at the side of the postoffice square and at the corner of State and Washington streets. There will be three grand divisions of the procession, each subdivided to suit the size of the societies composing it.

A Welcome Rain in Texas.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19.—A Dallas special says north Texas was delighted by rain last night. Creeks and rivers are everywhere bank full, the Trinity is rising rapidly and will go out of its banks. This rain will give Texas a splendid wintering grass crop for its cattle and fix the ground for fall wheat and in many other ways be worth millions of dollars to the state.

Mrs. Harrison's Condition.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—No change is noted in Mrs. Harrison's condition to-night. She passed a good day and night.

The Six Days' Match

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—All but six have dropped out of the walking match. The 11 o'clock score is as follows: Hart 106 miles, Moore 136, Connors 134, Guerero 134, Campana 132, Dean 137.

He should have caught it with ease and his failure to make the play turned it into a two base hit and gave Lowe a run. In the eighth Stivetts two-bagger and McCarthy's hits single scored the winning run for the Bostons. The Clevelands made a desperate effort to tie the game in the ninth but just failed. McAleer getting to third. The entire party leave to-night for Boston in two special cars. Attendance 7,500.

Mr Chain's Fate

DENVER, Oct 19.—Much sorrow is expressed by many citizens of this city over the report giving Mr and Mrs. J A Chain as two who lost their lives in the ill-fated steamer Bokhara. Mr Chain was president of the firm of Chain & Hardy, booksellers. Last March he left Denver with his wife for a two years' trip over the globe. On Sept. 7, S. B. Hardy, partner of Mr Chain, had a letter from Pekin, China, where Mr. and Mrs Chain then were. This letter gave no indication of their future intentions. Two weeks prior to that Mr Chain wrote to him from the kingdom of Corea and gave him a Bombay address to which he should write. Mr Hardy thinks it likely from this that they shipped from Bombay for Europe on the lost steamer.

Italian Sympathy for Mrs. Harrison.

CHICAGO, Oct 19.—Just before the diplomatic train for the World's Fair left Washington yesterday Baron Fava, minister from Italy, was given an audience by President Harrison at the White House. The baron called, pursuant to instructions in a telegram from Foreign-minister Brin, and explained to the president the instructions of King Humbert which were to inquire after the health of Mrs Harrison and to express his majesty's wish that she might soon recover.

President Harrison expressed his grateful thanks for the sympathy of his Italian majesty which Baron Fava sent to Rome by wire upon his arrival in this city.

Damage from Wind

STERLING, Kan., Oct. 19.—This vicinity was visited by a very severe gale this evening, which did much damage to property. The dwelling of Mr. Weightman in this city was demolished, and one of his children was badly injured. A few miles northeast of here the barns of A. E. Davis and J. M. Daughaty were razed to the ground. In the same vicinity Lincoln school house was blown over. All over the county windmills and like articles were blown to atoms.

Affairs at Homestead

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Oct. 19.—The strike situation here is unchanged. Several arrests are reported to have been made upon non-unionists last night and it is said more deputy sheriffs will be placed on duty at night. August Gibbs, Ludlow Applegate and David Williamson received body beatings and Gibbs says $4 was taken from him. Another man was held up, but he drew a revolver and he would be accommodated.

A Bad Indian.

DENVER, Oct 19.—A special from Prescott, Ariz., says the notorious Apache, "Kid," is in the Huachuca mountains again. He killed two men last week. He was seen last week near Fort Huachuca. A party of soldiers of the Third cavalry are on his trail with orders to shoot him on sight. The Kid has been a renegade on the war path since the Geronimo trouble in 1886.

The Yale-Princeton Game

NEW YORK, Oct 19.—The Yale-Princeton foot ball match will be played again at the Manhattan field. The two college organizations have rented the grounds outright from the Manhattan Athletic club for more than $5,000. In this way the club expects to make a clear profit of $5,000, which is last year it lost $9,000.

An Indiana Earthquake.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 19.—Three distinct earthquakes here of three to five vibrations each were noted at Martinsville this morning at 10 o'clock. The shocks were five minutes apart. The trembling of the earth was plainly perceptible and the people were greatly alarmed, but no damage was done.

A Runaway Street Car

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Oct. 19.—A runaway street car tore up things generally on Fourth street to-night. The brake would not work and the car dashed down a hill half a mile long carrying the telegraph poles and light vehicles along with it. Motorman Chris Hahn and Policeman Rubel were seriously hurt in the smashup.

A MEMORIAL SERVICE

The Rev. Dr. [illegible] will preach a memorial sermon in the evening of this day for the veterans of the Civil war. The sermon will be in the form of a lecture on the Civil war as seen from the pulpit. The lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon views.

Presbyterian church last evening. He detailed some of the characteristics of the Chinese race prominent among them being good common sense. They are a compact, strong and massive people, long headed and adepts at diplomacy. The Chinese which we see every day come only from one section and that one of the poorest. If we wish to see specimen Chinese we must go to Washington and feel the legations there. The speaker refuted the idea that the Chinese are less intelligent than the Japanese. He believed the Japanese to be a fickle and pretty race but without the stability which attaches to the Chinese.

Dr Marshall then talked upon the missionary work. It was begun in 1807 by Robert Morrison who continued the work for thirty seven years. There were 10,000 Christians in China. Now there are 40,000. The speaker then passed on to describe the experience of missionaries, their manner of life and the trials and hardships incident to planting the cross in the Celestial empire and closed with an earnest appeal for a continuance of the missionary spirit.

A Revolution in Argentina.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct 19.—A revolution has broken out at Santiago Del Estro, the capital of the province of the same name, the central province of the republic. There has already been some fighting and a few citizens have been killed.

Guilty of Murder.

DENVER, Oct 19.—Frank Augusta, the Italian who several months ago killed Harry Sullivan alias McClenaghan, was to-night found guilty of murder in the first degree.

A Popular Error.

Down until the middle of the past century many supposed to be educated people in the world actually believed that the barnacle or barnacle goose was hatched from the parasitic shell known to conchologists as the barnacle, or as scientifically the barnacula. Holinshed, the English historian who flourished just before Shakespeare's appearance in English literature, in writing of the barnacle goose says, "I have seen these barnacles hanging upon rotes, timbers etc with the feathers hanging out of the shell two inches." Drayton's "Herbal" published seventeen years after the death of Holinshed, refers to the wonderful barnacle goose as follows, "In the north of Scotland there are certain trees whereon do grow, shellfishes, which falling into the water, do become fowles whom we call barnacles and, in the north of England brant geese, in Lancashire tree geese or shell geese."—St Louis Republic.

What He Was Doing

The Saunterer heard not long ago of a colored servant who went into a fish store in Richmond to buy a dinner for his master. He looked all about the place until he came to a pile of shad, and being somewhat skeptical as to their freshness he raised one of the fishes to his face. The dealer, seeing this little act, asked indignantly, "What do you mean by smelling of that fish?"

"Didn't neber smell ob de fish nohow. Only speakin to him."

"Ah, indeed, and what did he tell you?"

"Massa I jes' axes him fo' de news at de mout ob de riber, an he says he done clean forgot, fer he ain't seen no wa'sh fer fo' weeks mesef. An dats all he said, sah, 'deed it is."—Boston Budget.

Places of Refuge.

As Wazan is a city of refuge for the outside world, so are the mosques and tombs of the shereefs for the inhabitants of Wazan, and men fleeing from justice or an [illegible] may have been known to spend months and even a year in the holy precincts without once leaving both. The great mosque of Mulay Abdullah Sherif, with its courts and arcades, affords shelter for any number of these refugees, and at the present moment no inconsiderable quantity are housed there. Their food is brought to them by their relatives or friends, if they have any, and if not they either send and buy, or, if moneyless, exist on the charity of those who pray in the mosques.—Blackwood's Magazine

When Carleton Stuttered

Henry Guy Carleton was walking on Tremont street a few days ago with a manager between whom and the playwright has existed an antarctic coolness ever since the manager "did" a play of Carleton's in more ways than one.

"Your friend isn't looking well" observed Carleton's companion, a little pale about the gills.

"He has tut two good reasons for not fuf feeling well" said Carleton.

"And what are they?"

"Why, his nun new company can't act and his old kuk kidneys won't."—Boston Letter.

When the Era of Dolls Is Passed

Never try to laugh children out of their childish affection for dolls for with the laying away of the French beauty the German sailor boy or the homemade rag baby the little girl has gone forever and in her place stands a maiden with questioning eyes, who looks out upon the great world so new to her and longs just a little for the playthings put away with the other illusions of a childhood she has left behind.—Philadelphia Times.

Little Flora's Comment.

A lady calling at our house consulted her watch, which was very small. It being a present to her, some of the family desired to see it. Little Flora, four years old looked at it and exclaimed, "Oh, it's young, isn't it?"—Youth's Companion.

The police of New York city in one year shot 170 mad dogs, attended to 308 found-ling found 174 [illegible] in the Croton water which they found running 663 times, and reported 2,[illegible] fires and 78,[illegible] violations of ordinances.

There is no event of recent happenings which has been more generally misunderstood or which has given rise to more incorrect conclusions than the Homestead strike. If we may believe what we read, there are actually men in the United States who think that the Homestead strikers were greatly ill used and abused, that they were fully justified, not only in their strike, but also in all the actions by which they attempted to force the company to yield to their demands and to prevent the employment of new workmen, and that all that has been done in the way of punishment for their lawless acts has been mere persecution and vengeance To all who are interested in this matter, and especially to those who are inclined to sympathize with these men, who were perhaps misguided, perhaps mistaken, but certainly wrong doers we commend the calm and clear utterances of Chief Justice Paxson of the supreme court of Pennsylvania To the jury before whom the charge of treason against the strikers' advisory committee was brought he said

"The mutual right of the parties to contract is equal. It is war, and the character of the employment, whether by the piece or by the day, whether for ten hours or less, is as fixed as any other right which we enjoy under the constitution and laws of this state. It is a right which belongs to every citizen, laborer or capitalist, and it is the plain duty of the state to protect him in the enjoyment of it. It is alleged that the advisory committee did more than advise others not to accept employment from the company, that it allowed no persons to enter the mills, and even permitted no strangers to enter the town of Homestead without its consent, that it arranged an organization of a military character, consisting of three divisions, with commanders, captains, etc., the captains to report to the division commanders, the latter to the advisory committee"

He then detailed how the authority of the sheriff had been defied, the arrival of the Pinkertons, the riot following and finally the mobilization of the state troops, adding "We can have some sympathy with a mob driven to desperation by hunger, as in the days of the French revolution, but we can have none for men receiving exceptionally high wages in resisting the law and resorting to violence and bloodshed in the assertion of imaginary rights and entailing such a vast expense upon the taxpayers of the commonwealth

"It is not a cry for bread to feed their famishing kin, resulting in a sudden outrage, with good provocation, it is a deliberate attempt by men without authority to control others in the enjoyment of their rights. The men had a right to enjoy them, but the moment they attempted to control the works and resorted to violence they placed themselves outside the pale of the law

"If we were to concede the doctrine that the employe may dictate to his employer the terms of his employment and upon the refusal of the latter to accede to them, take possession of his property and drive others away who are willing to work, we would have anarchy No business could be conducted upon such a basis that doctrine when once counterbalanced would be extended to every industry"

The justice then defined as treason the organization of a large number of men in a common purpose to defy the law, resist its officers and deprive any portion of their fellow-citizens of their rights under the constitution and the laws. "It is a state of war, said he, "when a business plant has to be surrounded by the army of the state to protect it from unlawful violence at the hands of its former employees.

"Every member of such associated government, whether it be an advisory committee or by whatever name it is called, if it participated in such usurpation was engaged in defiance of the laws and a violation of the rights of other citizens, and has committed treason against the state.

"While the definition of the offense is the levying or overturning of the government of this state, such insurrection need not extend to every portion of its territory. It is sufficient if it be an overturning of it in a particular locality, and such intent may be inferred from the acts committed.

"If you find from the evidence that the defendants have or any of them have committed participated and aided in any of the acts which I have defined to you as constituting the offense of treason, it will be your sworn duty to find a true bill against the party or parties so offending

"We have reached the point in history of the state where there are but two roads for us to pass the road to order and good government of the other to anarchy The one great question which concerns the people of this country is the enforcement of the law and the preservation of order

On election day every Republican voter in this county and district should be careful that he votes the name of C F Stubbs for state senator Mr Stubbs is eminently qualified for the office and deserves this recognition at the hands of the Republicans for his work in the past He has a harder task before him than any man on the local ticket, for the reason that he has an opponent a man of some strength and ability A vote for Mr Leddy however, means a vote for Tom Patterson for United States senator Among those who are knowing in politics that is said to be the secret of the Denver News fight for the People's party, to elect enough hold over senators to insure the vote of the state senate in 1894 to Tom Patterson The lower house they hope to capture next fall

No man stands for free silver to a greater degree than Senator Wolcott. He is for free coinage first, last, all the time and under any circumstances. And when he says that silver is not a party issue, he means that while it is, in his opinion, useless to expect anything from either the Democrats or Republicans, it is at least equally hopeless to expect any benefit from the People's party Under such circumstances therefore other matters of importance are to be considered, and other matters being considered, there is no doubt that the Republican party is a great deal more worthy of the support of the voters of Colorado than the Democratic or the People's party

No one in Colorado believes that the casting of a vote for Weaver will advance the remonetization of silver, and there is scarcely anyone outside of the Denver News office who says it will. The reasons for this are evident: The success of the People's party movement is absolutely impossible. Furthermore the People's party is by its own declaration, a greenback party, and that is inconsistent with silver coinage. The People's party lacks the power, it lacks the intelligence and it lacks the desire to do any thing for silver

It is the part of wisdom to choose the least of two evils If it were true that the People's party could advance the interests of silver, it would still remain true that the injury inflicted upon the credit of the state by their success would be more than that from the depreciation of silver below its present price could be But the dilemma does not exist. The People's party has never done anything for silver, it cannot and will not do anything for it in the future

The application of Jerry Simpson's sub treasury bill with its no silver clause to the present campaign lies not in the fact that Simpson introduced the bill but that the People's party platform endorsed it

A Reporter and Burglar

Richard Harding Davis, whose interest in life must have diminished considerably since he took to writing fiction and gave up good noble reporting, thought that he would like to capture a lot of Philadelphia burglars Mr Davis was then reporting for a Philadelphia paper He disguised himself as a burglar, and lived with the gang for two or three weeks All were arrested and some of them are still in jail A great actor was evidently lost to the world in Richard Harding Davis. He has few of the burglar's instincts, and doesn't look like a burglar, but he played the part so well that when one of the swindlers whom he had met in the course of his criminal experience called at his father's house and beheld Davis arrayed in fine linen he gazed at Davis in admiration, and whispered his earnest congratulations, thinking that Davis had introduced himself into the house as a butler with an eye to future rascalities

The man's idea in calling was to swindle the servants of the house in some way Davis' acquaintance with the crook of course made the undertaking a failure. Davis gained the confidence of the burglars by representing himself as a burglar from New York who wanted to keep quiet and out of Hernes' way for a little while.—New York World

Headdressing Among the Romans.

The ancient Romans were most simple in their attire and so continued for a long period but after a time fashion came to reign supreme among them, just as it does with us today

In the early Roman days the women following eastern traditions, were seldom seen abroad and when they did go out wore their faces veiled, but as richness and luxury increased the household labors were delegated to slaves, and dress and show became the chief object of ambition.

The simplicity of their home life and the number of bakers and cook shops enabled even the poorer classes to spend much of their time in the streets, market places and at the public games.

It is noticeable that this day the poorest Roman woman no matter how coarse her garments will invariably have her hair neat plaited and elaborately coiled and fastened with showy beaded pins—which care of her bountiful tresses she derives directly from her ancestress of ancient times for the ancients spent more time in the elaborate dressing of the hair than in any other adornment —Spare Moments

Some "Smart" Books.

Perhaps the most delightfully smart book of travels ever written was Eothen' There is such a subtlety and alacrity in the accent of egotism which runs through it, that it is impossible to be disgusted with it But then that accent is unmistakable though all the more attractive, for not being too glaring too prominent Another extremely smart and brilliantly smart book was Mr Mallock's own New Republic' but no one would ever have thought of attributing to that book any high fastidiousness of taste or modesty of temper The characteristic accent of the book is an exalted self confidence—an elation or satirical penetration In a still more emphatic sense, Gibbon's writing is all smart though of course it is much more than smart - London Spectator

A Clever Remark

A clever bon mot is recently benefited to Mr W S. Gilbert At a literary gathering the conversation turned upon the income of bishops and their benevolent work Ah said Mr Gilbert, "it is easy enough for bishops to be good on salaries of £5 000 a year but we have to be good for nothing, and," looking round with a merry twinkle in his eye "some of us are" —London Tit-Bits

DISAPPOINTED MEN.

SOME REFLECTIONS INDUCED BY JUDGE GRESHAM'S ACTION

A Keenest on Editorial Which Shows How Little Weight Loudly Trumpeted Declarations of Change in Political Preferences Should Have.

There comes a time in every national campaign when the unsound, specked and worm eaten fruit begins to dry from the party tree As the ripening season plays havoc with the worthless fruit of the orchard so the approach of election tests the soundness of hesitating and disappointed men in the great political parties They hold back their announcements to the last moment, hoping to make the greatest possible sensation Their motive is a personal one else they would not make public announcement of their intention They intend to give publicity to their defection from the parties with which they have hitherto acted at such times and in such manner as will make themselves fill a greater space than usual in the public eye that thus they may barter whatever of political influence attaches to them for a royal welcome in the party to which they desert The Pioneer Press grants willingly to every man the right of independent political action the right to change his party opinion and party relation with every campaign if it so pleases him, and if it be done on the basis of principle, however erratic. But it cannot and does not desire to repress its contempt for the brood of politicians who seek to create a personal sensation in every campaign by placarding their change from one standard to another as if it marked some great change of principle Such changes are usually quite evenly divided and each party that receives a deserter professes to believe that it means momentous things for the campaign But both of them know that it is all a part of the show, a mere bit of brass band and bass drum work, and the loyal men of each entertain in the silent depths of their hearts a feeling not unmixed with contempt for the persons who herald their march from one camp to the other as a triumph of principle over custom and inclination.

This little theatrical performance has now begun, and we may look to see quite a bit of it before the sun dawns on November's contest Impartially viewed, whether the deserter has been Republican or Democrat, the episode counts for just nothing at all One does not measure the fruit crop by the windfalls that follow the first autumn blast through the orchard, shaking the overripe stuff to the ground Judge Gresham lets it be understood that he may not vote for Mr Harrison. Well, people should be very sorry for Judge Gresham All know that he and Harrison have been bitter political enemies All know that he has great political aspirations, and that they have been cruelly disappointed. It was evident enough when the People's party sought him as a candidate that something was wrong, because, although he declined to represent that curious aggregation, he did so with such ostentation of reluctance to say anything as intimated an uneasy and discontented mind. If Judge Gresham decides to vote against Mr Harrison it is his privilege to do so without losing caste, but when he advertises the fact he must expect that the circumstances of the case and the reasons why he is apparently anxious that his action shall be known will be examined Judge Cooley, it is said, expects to do the same thing Judge Cooley was brought into intimate relations with Mr Cleveland by his appointment as chairman of the interstate commission It was a compliment to which no man could have been insensible, and it carried with it a strong incentive to personal loyalty. We have no doubt that if the truth were known Judge Cooley voted for Mr Cleveland in 1888 and will do so again this year for obvious reasons and without making any fuss about it Wayne MacVeagh is making a great deal more noise than either of the other gentlemen mentioned Why his declaration in favor of Cleveland should be considered a defection we do not know

Mr MacVeagh is well known as a Mugwump of the deepest dye He has for years been one of those who believe that the proof of independence in politics is to vote against the party with which you voted last, and it is no more of a surprise to hear that he will support Mr Cleveland than it would be if the editor of the New York Nation were to announce the same thing. To take but one of many instances on the opposite side of the question, we find nothing miraculous, or even confirming Republican success, in the desertion of General Sickles to the Republican cause. General Sickles is one of the New York Democrats who hate and despise Mr. Cleveland, and whom it has required all the strength of party fealty to prevent from opposing him in the past He stumped New York four years ago rather for the sake of Hill and the state ticket than for Cleveland He sat in the Chicago convention, and declared himself there in language which made it practically impossible for him to vote for Mr Cleveland He is a bluff old gentleman and soldier, and simply prefers to state publicly what he is going to do, instead of professing, as the rest of the Hill Democrats do, that he is loyal to Cleveland, only to knife him the more vigorously and successfully at the polls These four cases are fair samples of the fruit that is falling to the ground in these days There is great clamor of words about them, but they are much like the roorbacks that appear just before the polls open They count for little or nothing with thoughtful men, they do not carry with them the weight or the consequences which the party orators would have us believe, and they are far more a measure of personal vanity than a test of public opinion or a forecast of election results —St Paul Pioneer Press

COLORED VOTERS ADVISED.

One of Them Gives Some Facts Which Are Worthy of Consideration

I desire to call the attention of the Afro-American voters of the state of New York to the principles and motives of the Democratic party They joined issue with the Whig party which was the southern end of the slave organization and they jointly advocated the Calhoun doctrine Once a state, always a state" The combination of northern Democrats and southern Democrats—both enemies of the colored man—became a powerful political party which was controlled by the southern slaveholding power placing laws upon the statute books that made every United States officer a fugitive slave hunter

The statute of 1850 for the rendition of the fugitive slave was one of the most barbarous acts of the Democratic party The statute of 1793 was a humane measure compared with the fugitive slave law On the 28th day of June 1864, the grand old Republican party repealed this infamous bill and at that very instant the northern Democrats insisted that negro slavery must be preserved with the Union Every attempt made to secure equal rights of the negro was opposed by the Democratic party vigorously, but the Republicans, on the 31st of March, 1864, declared that he was a man and he was enlisted in the army and fought the Democratic rebellion to death. Major General Hunter, on the 9th of May, 1862, made all of the slaves in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida were forever free, and the Republican party sustained him in his acts. On the 8th of April, 1864, the constitution was amended, abolishing slavery Only two Democrats in the senate and house voted in favor of the bill Sixty-five Democrats voted for the continuation of slavery On the 18th day of December the Republican secretary of state, William H Seward issued a proclamation declaring that a majority of the loyal Republican states had ratified the amendment Henceforth slavery was dead in America.

The Republican party passed the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the constitution and were bitterly opposed by every senator and congressman of the Democratic party I might produce 1 000 good and indisputable reasons why every Afro American should support the candidates of the Republican party The sacred right of American freemen, the priceless ballot and the progress of our race are of such value that every patriotic man should renew his obligation to the Republican party and prove to the world that the Afro-American are of the stuff that men are made of

We are laying the foundation properly for the producing of a great people We should exert every honest endeavor to retain the Republican party in power, for outside of her bulwarks is the deep sea full of Democratic sharks ready to strip us of all our rights, and if they once get the presidency, the senate and the house they can repeal and enforce and pass such laws as they may deem proper, and if necessary bring the army and navy and every United States officer to enforce the same and make the life of the now free Afro-American equal to that of a slave. See that you vote early and that every voter of your acquaintance has cast his ballot for the Republican party Acquaint yourself with the registration law If you are not acquainted with it try to procure a copy from some good Republican and make it a study, so that the Democrats cannot take advantage of your ignorance of the laws that are essential to make you an upright voter —H Price Williams

To Break the Solid South.

The startling facts that the northern man is to learn through the incitement of the Democratic cry of "force bill" are to be more potent in the overthrow of frandulent southern Democratic methods than any force bill could prove. There is a sense of righteousness among men that can be aroused to loud expression by a study of conditions in the south, and when the conscience of the nation is awake and informed an irresistible public opinion will be more to smash the unholy, unconstitutional and criminal methods of the southern Democracy than any army could do with bayonets and bullets.—Milwaukee Sentinel

Harrity's Brilliant Scheme.

It is intimated that Boss Harrity is endeavoring to divert attention from New York in order to be better able to put into execution certain schemes for carrying that state To further this brilliant idea the story about making an effort to capture several western states was started with the expectation that the Republicans will be thrown off their guard This is an evidence of the desperate strait the boss and his lieutenants are in The scheme will not work —Williamsport (Pa.) Gazette and Bulletin.

When a Dog Surrenders.

It is evident that a man who will seriously undertake to put himself on rapport with other animals can exchange communication with them at least as satisfactorily as he could with another man who was confined to an entirely different language Mr Hogg, who has had no special training understands some half dozen of my gestures and himself uses the turning aside of the head to indicate dissent, accompanied often by a plain look of disgust at being misunderstood, puts up a paw to deprecate punishment turns on his back to express submission, sticks up his tail the warrior brandishes his weapon or waves his flag, the dog has no weapon by way of defiance, lowers it for shame or alarm

That turning on the back, by the way is well understood among dogs as a gesture of surrender If two strange dogs meet on the street and one shows fight, if the other turns on his back he will not, as a rule, be molested. Cor New York Times

For Cancer and Skin Poisoning

Cancerous growths are the most difficult skin diseases to control The knife is generally the only thing that will answer satisfactorily but the drug called pyoktanin has been used with considerable success As a local dressing on painful cancers that could not be removed by an operation it gives considerable relief, and in many instances has decreased the size of the growth For poisonings of the skin various drugs are used, but for ivy poison there is none better than permanganate of potassium which makes an excellent wash for the poisoned skin In Russia it has been found of great value in frost bites relieving the itching and burning sensation at once For slight burns of the skin it is also of great use, but severe burns are not to be treated by it —Milwaukee Sentinel

Cannibals and Shaved Heads.

On the upper Congo the natives give a great deal imagination and labor to the arrangement of their headdress. Some of them, however, like the Bangala keep their heads closely shaved except for little tufts of hair on top and at the sides On the middle Mobengi river the natives also shave their heads. This is a very general custom among cannibal tribes Not all cannibals on the Congo shave their heads but it is certain that all tribes which follow this practice are cannibals.—New York Sun

Milton Nobles

The well known actor, Milton Nobles, will present his new play, "For Revenue Only" or a third party movement at the opera house Monday evening The Denver News says "So great was the success of "For Revenue Only" at the Broadway last night that it is doubtful if the bill will be changed on Wednesday night as intended The play hit the nail right on the head at this time of political excitement and the humorous hits, which compose most of it kept the audience laughing continuously The first act in which the newspaper man takes possession of the banker and would be statesman is deliciously funny, principally because the political methods adopted in the conference have a distinct resemblance to those of Boodle hall and similar machines All of the parties catch it in turn during the progress of the play but it was very noticeable the hits at silver such of them as Mr Nobles permitted to go before a Colorado audience did not meet with any response The audience heard them good naturedly and that was all Mr Nobles and Miss Loving are, of course, thoroughly satisfactory in their parts Clarence Arper, as Durham Perry, gives an excellent performance and the other male members are good Mrs Dollie Nobles and Miss Lovena Atwood as Rose and Violet Merrywin are charmingly pretty Miss Mary Davenport as the president of the Woman's Suffrage association and Miss Genie Hurlan as Mary Ann fulfilled all requirements There was a large house

Under Pressure.

Yeast placed in a saccharine solution at ordinary pressure gives rise to the well known vinous fermentation Under a pressure of 600 atmospheres however, this did not occur the yeast falling to the bottom of the liquid, while the solution of sugar was unchanged After removing the pressure the yeast remained inactive for some time and then resuming its activity set up fermentation in the ordinary way and carried it on to completion In a second experiment yeast was put into pure water and left for an hour under a pressure of 1,000 atmospheres,

It was then transferred to a solution of sugar at the normal pressure, and after passing through a period of quiescence again became active, and appeared to have lost none of its power as an organized ferment From these experiments Professor Regnaud concludes that the effect of high pressure upon the yeast cells for the time during which the experiments lasted merely induced the latent condition and was otherwise harmless Whether a more prolonged exposure would ultimately injure the cells the author does not appear to have determined though the point is an important one

Anxious however to obtain a further insight into the phenomena, he constructed an instrument for registering the fermentative activity of the yeast before and after the application of high pressures, and was enabled to obtain a graphic representation of the process under normal and various abnormal conditions Similar experiments were made with unorganized ferments, various digestive fluids and the number of putrescible substances and in each case it was found that high pressures completely arrested the processes which are normally set up —Westminster Review

His Great Loss.

"There was a queer old fellow in a company that I played a special engagement with in London said an actor "He was a dignified person—one of the palmy days men—long hair and all that—and he was cast for the Friar in Romeo and Juliet He got on well enough until he came to one of the speeches that rhyme and I'm blessed if he didn't go right on rhyming through all the rest of that scene He never hesitated for a word either When he had a speech with me afterward he stopped in the middle of it and began to look over the audience I gave him his lines in a whisper and he began to be troubled with a most tremendous cough that didn't deceive anybody A night or two afterward he was in about the same state and made a pretty bad break in one place I fed him his lines though And he got through after a fashion

As we went off he caught me by the hand and with tears in his eyes told me I was one of the right sort and that he would never forget my kindness. 'Ah, sir, you don't know what I am laboring under just at present said he I thought it was about a pint of gin, but I didn't say so Ah sir he went on 'my poor sister died today I told him I was very sorry and advised him to stay out of the cast for a few nights Later one of the women, as she was going to her dressing room, said to another Isn't it really too bad about poor old B—'s brother" What about him' said the other 'Died this afternoon.'"—New York Sun.

We strolled into Dutton's the other day—who does not look in there—and were greatly interested in their display of cups and saucers

In the days of our grandmothers styles in China Ware were limited but now there seems to be no end to the variety

We noticed them in boat and wine cup shapes also hexagon spiral fluted and corrugated to say nothing of the many indescribable

Here was the work of the Japanese delicate and fragile with their quaint and curious decorations English ware more substantial yet none the less artistic France and Austria were represented with that originality of design characteristic of them In fact all countries that excel in China ware seemed to be represented

And then the colorings Among others we noticed a beautiful cream with a rich pink vine a pale blue with tracery of silver another in striking contrast of black and gold How wide the range of adaptation!

For an afternoon tea, a social gathering an invalid or for daily use, every need here met, at prices from 18 cents each to $18 and more a dozen
